

English Workshops for PhD Candidates and Master's students in cooperation with the Graduate Academy of the University of Rostock

Academic Writing Masterclass

This three-part workshop helps PhD candidates improve their academic writing step by step. Participants will learn how to develop clear, coherent arguments and express complex ideas with confidence and precision. Through interactive exercises and hands-on practice, you'll work on paragraph and sentence structure, academic vocabulary, and register. You'll have the opportunity to apply what you've learned by writing a section of your own research text. Each participant will also receive detailed, individualised feedback from the instructor. To gain the greatest benefit from the workshop, participants are expected to engage with self-study materials between sessions.

Tuesdays 1, 8, and 15 September 2026, 3-5 pm

Academic Presentations Masterclass

This three-part workshop is designed for PhD candidates who aim to deliver clear, confident, and engaging academic presentations. Through interactive exercises and hands-on practice, participants will learn how to structure their talks effectively, communicate complex ideas with clarity, and enhance their delivery using body language and visual design. The workshop also offers strategies for handling challenging audience questions and creating visually effective presentation slides. By the end, you'll be better prepared for your next academic presentation. To support continued improvement, each participant will receive personalized feedback from the instructor after the final session. To benefit fully from the sessions, participants are expected to engage with self-study materials between sessions.
